DEE SATESPAY NIGHT.

The week is so crowded with events that it is difficult to confine ourselves to one train of thought at its close, There died and was buried in the humbler walks of life a woman who has for fifty goers been distinguished for ber patriotism. Of course, this reputation was not public but it was so well established smong those who knew her that it was a matter of common com-

Her request was that her grave be aurrounded with veteran soldiers when she should be buried. It was complied with, and the Grand Army post torned out an escort of the men who were fighting the country's battles in uniforms while she was fighting them in the home, in the neighborhood and upheld the sentiments of joyalty about the fire-ide that were the grand bulwark of moral strength that upbeld the armies at bome. Mrs. D. C. Howard, late wife of Capt. Howard, was left at home on the north bank of the Ohio river when the war broke ouwith a large family of small children. There was fighting for a time in that border country on both sides of her and at times the women themselves took distant day. That is history that can never be written. The sacrifices, the anxieties, the sufferings of loyal mothers who sent their men to the front will pewer be recorded. Yet it is one of the most precious memories of the American people. There never was a more conspicious example of this beroism than the noble woman whe has just passed away.

It is still a fact that in business, in war, in achievements generally, man is the glory-bearer. Woman is the burstill on the borderland of savagery so of New York.

The death of Richard McGee involves primarily a question of professional et jies. Is alcohol a poison? Most doctors say it is not; they prescribe it as a found at Geneva and other places in tonic, a stimulant, a food, an unbuilder. A few leading professional men say it is a poison, an anesthetic, a poison that is at once taken into the blood and carried to the brain. It would be interesting to hear the various medical opinions on alcohol. It is useless to say that the liquor McGee drank was poisoned, if alcohol is itself a poison, and there are eminent authorities who hold it is, and whole schools of medicine who will not prescribe it. But so long as professional men prescribe it and people believe in its potency to give them strength it is idle to denounce a

DYNAMITE IN POLITICS.

Switzerland is deporting a great many refugees who, for years past, have the little Republic a refuge from oppression.

This change of policy is andoubtedly forced by the demand from all parts of Europe for the punishment of anarchists. This demand is emphasized and and made irresistible by such fiendish acts as that at Barcelona, where more than thirty innocent lives were sacri ficed in an anarchist effort to assassinate General Campos.

The Swiss government is blameless: It has taken the only open course to maintain the republic, which could not survive the united hostility of the of the great Powers of Europe.
